ABC Rural reported on July 25, 2026 that Syngenta will stop selling paraquat in Australia and New Zealand after APVMA restrictions made the products commercially unviable. The June APVMA review imposed new conditions including lower maximum application rates, a phase - out of backpack sprayers, enclosed mixing and loading systems and stricter personal protective equipment. Generic paraquat products from other companies are expected to remain available, but farm groups warned the exit creates uncertainty for weed - control options.
