Indian Economic Observer reported on July 22, 2026 that a Capital 360 ONE report warned renewed crude oil gains linked to Iran conflict risks could lift pesticide prices in coming months. Brent crude futures were cited at USD 91.51 per barrel and WTI at USD 84.64. The report said production across key chemicals weakened month - on - month in the first half of 2026, while pesticide production was a bright spot, rising 11 percent year - on - year, even as weak demand and abundant Chinese generics weighed on agrochemical pricing.
