카드 요약 / 당시 확인 내용

India's National Fertilizers Limited tender from June 8, 2026 revealed dramatic price movements in urea markets, with bids arriving at approximately $445 per ton CFR — a decline of nearly 50% compared to April 2026 levels near $890 per ton. This sharp correction was triggered when China quietly reopened its urea export window after an 8-month near-total suspension, issuing fresh export quotas for the June – August 2026 period. China's structural advantage stems from its roughly 70% coal-based production capacity, insulating it from global LNG price swings that hit natural gas-dependent producers in the Middle East and South Asia. Current Chinese export prices of about $670/ton FOB compare with domestic equivalents around $300/ton, giving producers substantial margins on exported volumes.
