CropLife published a July 10 Retail Week item in which editor Eric Sfiligoj spoke with Nick Dame, Product Management Lead for Innvictis, about the U.S. biologicals marketplace and how retailers should engage growers in integrated management programs. The article frames biologicals as a growing crop - input category that requires practical positioning with existing agronomic programs rather than isolated product claims. The commercial message is that retailer education and integration into familiar crop - protection and fertility plans are central to adoption.
