Brazilian prosecutors filed a lawsuit calling for authorities to reassess glyphosate's risks, citing the retraction by the journal Regulatory Toxicology and Pharmacology of a decades - old study (over author conflict - of - interest concerns) that regulators worldwide had used to allow glyphosate registration and sale. The roundup also notes that earlier in 2026 Argentina became the first country to register Syngenta's Virestina selective grass - weed herbicide, with plans to extend it to Brazil, Australia, the U.S. and Canada. It additionally covers U.S. political fights over Bayer's glyphosate liability shield.
