California Attorney General Rob Bonta, with support from 20 state attorneys general and nine major municipalities, filed a motion for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction seeking to stop Corteva Inc. from moving $39 billion of assets and value, alleging chemical companies including Corteva and DuPont shifted assets to avoid liability and failed to warn the public about PFAS (forever chemicals) dangers. Corteva categorically rejected the attempt on September 16, 2026, calling the claims speculative and unproven and the legal theories novel and unsupported. Corteva noted that no state has a judgment or scheduled trial against it related to PFAS and stated it has never manufactured or sold PFOA or PFOS products. The planned separation into crop protection company Corteva and seed company Vylor remains scheduled for October 1.
